Eva Stenram's series Parts, comprised of doctored photos of 1960s pin ups (work pictured), rethinks chic mid-century design as a surreal burlesque. Set centre stage amid pleated curtains, minimalist geometric sofas and the occasional chintzy rug are single flexed and curvaceous female legs. Clad in high heels and stockings, these elegant additions, extracted from mid-century models, might be evidence of some heinous but bloodless crime. Or are they designer props artfully poised as part of the furniture? Shag carpet, throw cushions, nylon-sheathed calf? You can't help but picture the absent body and complete the pose in your head. SS
